Publishers for Architecture and Design

We recommend for review in your journal / newspaper:

Thought Made Material: The Model between Design Process and Museum Collection

Eds. Grit Weber and Matthias Wagner K, Museum Angewandte Kunst in Frankfurt am Main

- Interdisciplinary aspects of design models
- With many illustrations and a useful glossary

Design models are an integral part of the design process, as prototypes and providers of ideas for those products that are later launched on the market as serial and mass goods. However, working with models is an interdisciplinary undertaking: The book reflects the design model as the basis for future concepts, as a collector's item in a museum and in its actual function as a planning and work tool for designers and model builders
